TOURS TO THE TROPICS.
Every week an Atlas Line steamship leaves New York for Port Limon, Costa Rica, via Jamaica. The trip of one of these fine steamers is replete with interest. The island of San Salvador, discovered by Columbus in 1492, is the first land sighted after leaving New York harbor, then Fortune Islands, then the eastern coast of Cuba, and then Jamaica. The ship stops two days at Kingston, but the passenger may, if he wishes, stop over until the following steamer, or longer, if desired. Jamaica will not fail to interest the visitor for an extended period. Continuing the voyage across the Caribbean sea, Port of Colombia, South America, is the next stop. Then comes Carthagena, the old Spanish stronghold of the new world, with its magnificent harbor and its fine old walls and churches. Next is Greytown, Nicaragua, where the canal is to be built, and lastly, Port Limon, Costa Rica, where the cargo of coffee, spices and bananas is taken on for the return trip. Such a voyage may be made in less than 30 days for the round trip and at a surprisingly low cost. Write Akron, O., ticket agent, Erie railroad, for particulars.

SAVED

By Prompt Action.

Miss Helen Storer Was Overcome by Gas.

Fainted While Calling a Physician.

Fortunately He Recognized Her Voice.

House Was Filled With Fumes From the Furnace.

The escape from death of Miss Helen Storer was the result of prompt action on the part of Dr. W. C. Jacobs.

Early Saturday morning, before daylight, Dr. Jacobs was awakened by the ringing of the telephone bell. He hastened to the instrument to respond to the call.

"Is this Dr. Jacobs?" He answered in the affirmative. There was no reply. Instead there was a sharp click as though the ear trumpet had fallen from the hand of the party at the other end of the line. In a minute there was another ring. This time the result was the same. He was called by name and then the conversation ceased. He had recognized the first speaker's voice, as that of Miss Storer.

Dr. Jacobs surmised that something was wrong at the Storer home and he hastened to the residence. He succeeded in gaining an entrance. Near the telephone he found Miss Storer and the maid. Both had fainted. The house was filled with gas. The physician promptly took steps to revive the two women. This he succeeded in doing after some time.

During the night the chimney had been choked with a heavy fall of soot. This had prevented the gas from passing out into the air. The pressure in the furnace had been so heavy that it was impossible for a complete combustion of the gas. As the extra amount could not pass off through the chimney it had filled the house. Both Miss Storer and the girl had been awakened by a choking sensation.

They made their way to the telephone both being overcome before they could tell Dr. Jacobs who they were. Fortunately he recognized Miss Storer's voice. Had it not been for this fact the chances are that both would have been killed by the escaping gas. Mr. Storer was asleep in another room. He has a stove in his room which is attached to another chimney. The door was closed and the gas had not penetrated into his room.

How to Cure Croup.
Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenia, Dutchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Rem
